

GEOG-CAST: 2811

Introduces students to the international politics of the circumpolar region and concludes with a unique simulation of the Arctic Council at which students are challenged to develop real-life scenarios and to play the role of diplomats or security actors to reach consensus on difficult areas of Arctic public policy

The International North and the Arctic Council

This unique summer course with Trent University is open to all UArctic Institutions and allows students to explore governance across the Circumpolar North & provides opportunity for students to simulate an Arctic Council meeting

